About MOLEFOCS

Molefocs (Mobile Learning English for Computer Students) enriches your language especially English for Specific Purpose in Computer Science. Covering four skills in language: speaking, reading, listening and writing, each unit provides the text and materials dealing with computer from simple to complex subject matter to discuss with your friends and teacher. There are seven units to study and each unit is completed with materials and exercise dealing with the unit discussed in the reading section. This is an offline application which can be accessed anywhere, anytime. The exercise provided are relevant to the topic of each unit in every skill competence. Finally, you may check your comprehension in the mid term and final review in the home page. Have fun study to reach excellent English with Molefocs to explore your English Skills for Computer Science...